Yogi Adityanath sworn in as UP CM

Lucknow, Mar. 19- Yogi Adityanath, a five-time BJP Member of Parliament from Gorakhpur and the head priest of the Goraknath temple in his constituency, took oath as Uttar Pradesh's new Chief Minister this afternoon along with two Deputy Chief Ministers and other members of his Cabinet. The 44-year-old MP was yesterday unanimously elected by the BJP Legislature Party leader.

The swearing-in ceremony was a massive show of strength by the Bharatiya Janata Party to celebrate its landslide win of UP and the oath ceremony at Lucknow's sprawling Smriti Upvan complex was attended by Prime Minister Narendra Modi, BJP President Amit Shah, many Union Ministers and BJP Chief Ministers from other States.

Former UP Chief Ministers Akhilesh Yadav, Mulayam Singh Yadav, Chief Ministers from 11 States including Andhra Pradesh CM Chandrababu Naidu, Goa CM Manohar Parrikar, Madhya Pradesh CM

Yogi Adityanath

Shivraj Singh Chouhan, Union Ministers Rajnath Singh, Uma Bharti, Ananth Kumar and senior BJP leaders L.K. Advani and Murali Manohar Joshi attended the ceremony.

For the first time, a double-decker Boeing 747 landed at Lucknow airport this morning. The plane carried sadhus and sanyasis to witness the grand show.

Accused of being a polarising leader by political rivals, Yogi Adityanath sought to make clear yesterday evening that as Chief Minister, his focus will be to deliver on PM Modi's development agenda and ensure good governance in Uttar Pradesh. "I will take UP forward with the PM's motto of sabka saath sabka vikas," said Adityanath soon after it was announced that he would be the CM.

"Party has decided on his name. He became a sanyasi and he is a five-time MP. It's not easy to win with such a large mandate. Ideological orientation and his commitment to fight against the injustice is what make him the leader. He is now the unopposed leader of the State in BJP and its allies," said Venkaiah Naidu, Union Minister.

"Two of the best news that I have got till date is Narendra Modi becoming the Prime Minister and my younger brother Yogi Adityanath becoming the Chief Minister of UP. Yogi will take development and patriotism hand in hand. Also, this is the biggest slap on the face of communists," said firebrand BJP leader Uma Bharti.

Echo of Kushalnagar bandh for new taluk

Mysuru-Madikeri traffic disrupted

Kushalnagar, Mar. 19 (OSR)- Normal life came to a standstill in Kushalnagar in Kodagu district this morning following the dawn-to-dusk bandh called by the 'Cauvery Taluk Rachana Horata Samiti' demanding taluk status for Kushalnagar. As of now, Kushalnagar comes under Somwarpet Taluk and it has been a long-pending demand of Kushalnagar residents for a separate Taluk.

The bandh was called to protest against the State Government for not announcing Kushalnagar Taluk while it announced creation of 49 new Taluks in the State in the Budget session.

Members of Cauvery Taluk Rachana Horata Samiti stopped vehicles entering Kushalnagar from Koppa Gate, Thavarekere, and Mullusoge areas from as early as 6 am today. While the movement of vehicles on the Mysuru-Madikeri Road came to a grinding halt, the movement of KSRTC buses too was affected though some buses reached reach Koppa Gate from Mysuru. Later, the KSRTC buses and other vehicles were allowed to proceed towards Mysuru and Madikeri from Kushalnagar in a staggered manner, not to inconvenience passengers.

Leopardess captured near BEML campus

Mysuru, Mar. 19- A one-year-old female leopard was captured near the BEML campus at Koorgalli this morning. The feline had strayed into the campus in search of food and had terrorised the residents since the past 10 days. CCTV cameras proved the presence of the leopard and accordingly, a cage was placed.

According to forest department officials, they got a call from BEML security guards at 6 am today that they heard loud roars of a leopard from the cage. Soon, a team arrived and covered the cage with plastic sheets so that the leopard does not get disturbed seeing humans around it. Later, the animal was sifted to Nagarahole National Park.

Forest officials said that the leopard could have come in search of food from the outskirts of the city that are dominated by thick grass, a perfect place for leopards to hide. Some BEML employees had alerted the security guards about a fortnight ago that they had spotted a leopard on the campus. CCTV footages too proved the presence of the leopard and the forest department was alerted.

Officials said that a leopard travels up to 25 to 30 km per day in search of food. Following the CCTV recording of the leopard's movement, a trap was placed near BEMEL Gate 1 and a dog was tied as bait. RFO H.K. Puttaraju said that the feline would have entered the cage in the night. "The leopardess is healthy and we will shift it to Nagarahole National Park," he said.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

Are women cut out for politics? Most women will demand my head for daring to ask such a question. But ask it I must, given last week's drama in Tamil Nadu. Had I asked myself the same question a decade ago, my answer would have been instant and unequivocal: "Of course! Definitely. Women are natural-born politicians." Today, I am taking back those words. Women, I hate to admit, simply don't have the stomach for this dirty game called politics.

Dirty, it is. And a game, too. I say this not because women refuse to play dirty games or are morally superior to men. It's just that historically they have less experience in this department. Power, as is understood and administered in the modern world, is still a predominantly male domain. Women who step into this murky arena have powerful men as their role models and colleagues. Soon they become quasi-men themselves. They clone the worst traits of alpha male behaviour and in the bargain are neither here nor there.

Not for nothing was Indira Gandhi admiringly referred to as 'the only man in the Cabinet.' It was meant as a compliment. But what it actually said was that she had become a ruthless tyrant, like some of the men around her. It also suggested she had emasculated her colleagues. Sasikala and Jayalalithaa are prime examples of women who ding-donged between playing archetypal women — obsessed by sarees, jewellery, sandals, gold, and in Jayalalithaa's case, that peculiar cape to hide her girth.

Weird Mask Muffles

New York: Don't you just hate it when you have to take an important phone call and you're surrounded by potential eavesdroppers? Now, a new gadget aims to fix this problem by muffling your voice and making you look like Bane in the process.

Hushme is a bizarre high-tech mask that blocks the sound of the wearer's voice while talking. It connects to your phone via Bluetooth and comes with a pair of earbuds. When you get a private call, all you have to do is put the muzzle-like mask on and it will do the rest. The pair of thick cushy pads over your mouth do a good job of muffling your voice, Hushme also features external speakers that play a variety of sounds when you speak. The Hushme mask, which comes in a variety of colours, like a regular pair of earphones, and attaches in front of your mouth thanks to a couple of very powerful magnets. It's not yet clear how comfortable speaking with this Bane-like mask over your mouth, all we know is that it makes you look weird.

Church turns into 'Beer bar' after mass

Brussels: In Brielen, a small Belgian village of only 700 inhabitants, it was customary for church goers to meet up for a beer after every Sunday mass. That became a problem after the last bar in the village closed down, but the local priest was more than happy to keep the tradition going by turning the church into a bar after Sunday mass. Some say alcohol is the devil's drink, but a Protestant church in Brielen, Belgium, is using it to keep parishioners happy and bring more people closer to God. Church goers who used to get together every Sunday after mass for a cold glass of beer were forced to either abandon their tradition or travel to neighbouring villages. So the local priest use the opportunity to do something good for his flock and attract more people to church. After asking the permission of local authorities, the priest announced that every Sunday, after mass, congregates were more than welcome to use the church as a bar and drink as much beer as they like, have to attend the mass in order to be allowed into the bar.

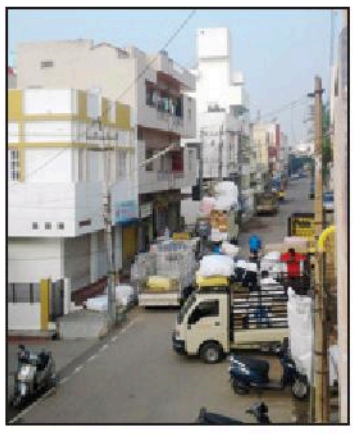
Transporters, a bane for residents on Kshetraiah Road

Sir,

The residents of Kshetraiah Road in K.R. Mohalla under Ward No. 36 have been facing problems with the increase of private transport offices over the past few months. The transporters frequently indulge in rowdyism thereby posing a threat to people living in the area.



Women and children are not safe as lorry drivers, cleaners and loaders gather in large numbers and block the streets. Lorries and trucks travelling in high speed are also posing threat to senior citizens living in the area. The parking of lorries on the road has denied sufficient parking space for residents.

We are also denied our right to walk on the footpath as the transporters pile up the materials. The Mysuru City Corporation (MCC) and City Traffic Police must take measures to stop this menace and provide a safe environment for the residents.

Importance of washing bottoms!

Sir,

Congratulations to Dr. K. Javeed Nayeem on his highly interesting and socially relevant article 'Let Clean Bottoms Come First!' in SOM dated Mar.17. Here is a quotation from Shashi Tharoor's latest book 'An Era of Darkness' on the British Empire in India, which is related to the same subject:

The East India Company had forced the weak Mughal Emperor Shah Alam II in 1765 to cede the powers of revenue collection in Bengal to them and their power was on the ascendant. The historian, William Darlymple, quotes a Mughal official named Narayan Singh asking around that time "What honour is left to us when we have to take orders from a handful of traders who have not yet learned to wash their bottoms?"

II

Sir,

The article by Dr. K. Javeed Nayeem 'Let Clean Bottoms Come First!' was really apt. This is an ordeal practically every true Indian, however snobbish he or she might be, has to go through or has gone through when one tries to ape western habits which seems to be the in-thing now. But in case one touches this forbidden subject then that person is considered a fool. Doc, you have hit the nail on the head, rather bottom!

Minister D.K. Shivakumar alleges phone tapping by Centre

Bengaluru, Mar.19 (KMS&DM)- On a day when Chief Minister Siddharamaiah charged the Centre with targeting the Congress Ministers and leaders in Karnataka by misusing the Income-Tax Department, Energy Minister D.K. Shivakumar has claimed that his phone was being tapped.

Shivakumar

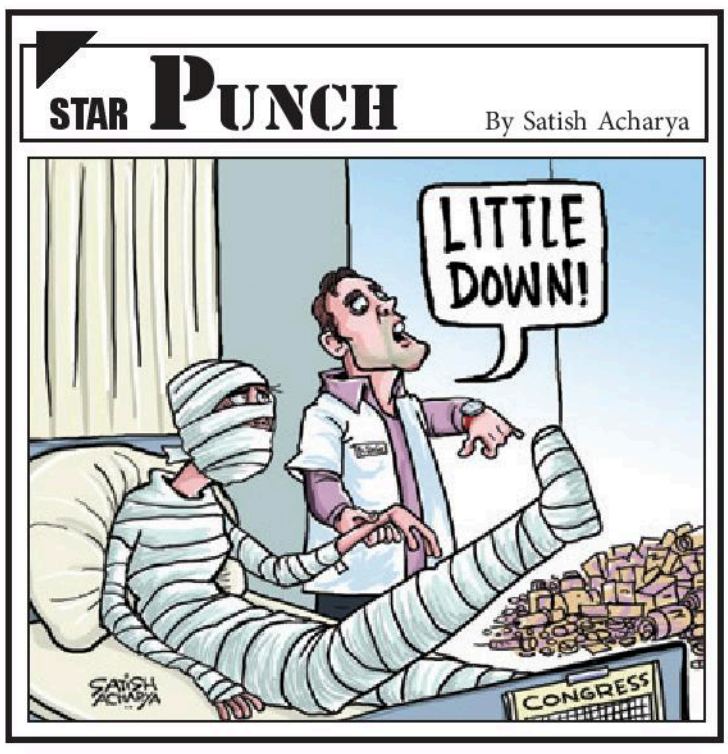
Speaking to press persons here on Saturday, Shivakumar claimed he strongly suspected his phone was under surveillance as he experienced frequent cuts when he was conversing over the phone.

Alleging that the Income Tax (IT) Department was targeting Congress Ministers and MLAs and the raids on Congress leaders had become very common, he said although it was routine for the IT Department to conduct raids, there should be no political motives behind them.

Suspecting that his phone was being tapped, Shivakumar said he received a notice from the IT Department after the raid on MLC Govindaraj's house and he has answered it.

Stating that phone tapping is a routine job of IT and Police Departments and it is done after obtaining permission, Shivakumar maintained that phone tapping is not an issue as long as it relates to economic offences and safety of the country.

However, phone tapping should not be converted into a political issue, he added.



CM lashes out at BJP for disrupting Assembly proceedings

Assembly adjourned to Monday

Bengaluru, Mar. 19- Demanding a debate on alleged 'Diarygate scam,' the Opposition BJP Legislators disrupted proceedings in the Assembly for the second day on Friday.

As soon as the Assembly met in the morning, the BJP members continued with their demand and raised slogans demanding a CBI probe into the contents of the diary.

Leader of the Opposition Jagadish Shettar said that the diary allegedly had notings indicating payments to the Congress High Command and the party members should be allowed to talk about it in the House.

Speaker K.B. Koliwad, turning down the request, asked the BJP members to withdraw the protest so that the House can discuss burning issues such as drought.

However, BJP members continued with their sloganeering, following which the Speaker adjourned the House for a short while.

When the House reassembled amid the din, Chief Minister Siddharamaiah lashed out the BJP Legislators saying that the people will teach them a lesson.

In a raised voice, the CM said that the BJP has been politicising the issue for publicity. "Nimma Appana Aaane (I swear on your father), you (BJP) will not come to power," Siddharamaiah said asserting that the Congress will retain power in 2018 and he will continue as the CM.

Taunting the BJP for some of its Ministers going to prison, Siddharmaiah claimed that the BJP had looted crores of rupees while in power and criminal cases have been booked against several BJP leaders.

Riled by the CM's remarks, the BJP continued to raise slogans against the Government. Finally, Speaker Koliwad adjourned the House to Monday.

Son sentenced to life for killing father

Mysuru, Mar. 19 (SBD&KS)- Second District and Sessions Court Judge Vijaykumar M. Anand Shetty has sentenced a 47-year-old man for killing his father by cutting off the genitals on Aug. 7, 2015.

While the son, who has been sentenced to life, has been identified as Rajesh, the father has been identified as Madaiah (82), a civil contractor and a resident of Gokulam 2nd Stage in city.

It may be recalled that Madaiah, who had five sons and a daughter, had not distributed his properties among his children and was staying with one of his sons Shivakumar.

Rajesh, who was unemployed, was looking after his father's works. Madaiah's another son Suresh, who was working in a factory, had quit his job and Madaiah had given him the responsibility which he had given to Rajesh, which angered Rajesh, who then began to pester his father (Madaiah) to give his share of property.

On Aug. 7, 2015, when the family members had gone out of station, Rajesh, who was waiting for an opportunity, went to the house and saw his father sleeping. He then picked up a hammer, hit his father's head, then took a scissor and cut off the genitals of Madaiah. He then locked the house, threw the keys away and behaved normally.

During Police investigation, Rajesh had reportedly told them that he had seen two persons fighting with his father in his room and leaving from there.

Meanwhile, during the immersion of Madaiah's ashes at Paschimavahini, Rajesh had revealed the truth and his brothers had informed the same to the Police. Rajesh, who was later taken into custody by the Police, is said to have told the Cops about the truth, following which, the Police booked a case, arrested Rajesh and submitted a charge-sheet to the Court.

Judge Vijaykumar M. Anand Shetty, who heard the arguments, found Rajesh guilty of the crime and sentenced him to life imprisonment.

Public Prosecutor H.D. Anand Kumar argued on behalf of the Government.

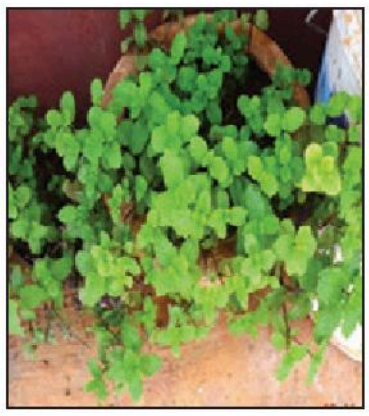
Grow your own organic greens ...live and let live

Beans & Coriander



Pudina (Mentha Arvensis)

Tomatoes

Mini Guava Tree

Passion Fruit

By Vasanthkumar Mysoremath

Gardening is an exhilarating and physical fitness activity for people of all ages, particularly for senior citizens who have the energy and will power to keep themselves fit and active and also be in personal contact with soil and nature. I find people of Mysuru are very fond of growing some plant or the other in their homes, including slum-dwellers; in my survey I found them growing varieties of flowers or useful household plants like mint, ginger, curry leaves, coriander, etc., that are required for their daily consumption.

Those who can afford, engage Malis to help them in creating and maintaining mini-gardens or to grow greens and vegetables in some vacant place in the front yard or in the backyard or in balconies / terraces. State Horticulture Department has been organising short term training courses/workshops for those who are interested in gardening activities. The Department has its nurseries from where people can buy red soil, organic manure etc., for a start and depending upon availability of funds, they are even supplying pots and saplings at reasonable cost.

Many may not be aware that the green leafy vegetables that are available in Mysuru are grown in villages in the periphery of the city and the farmers are either using tank water or borewell water or if none of these are available, they are using the drainage/waste water discharged from the city that flows in the vicinity of their village, if any. Since monsoons have failed for the past two years the water flowing in side drains and storm water drains contain waste water discharged from either broken manholes constructed in the centre of these SWDs. The waste waters contain all types of faecal matters, chemicals and toxins discharged by different types of industries located upstream of such drains. Farmers tap this water by using motors for pumping to upper reaches and grow greens and vegetables etc., for supply to the city dwellers.

According to test reports, these leafy greens and vegetables like knol khol, radish, beans, cabbage, gourds, tomato, etc., grown by using such waters are stated to contain alarming proportions of chemicals/toxins, and are harmful for health of the people. Consumers are happily using these greens etc., since they look fresh and available at their door step through vendors or nearby departmental stores, at affordable rates. Unfortunately, even if one wants to get these consumables tested, one is not aware of availability of such testing laboratories in the city. Lack of such infrastructure is forcing people to consume whatever is available in the market and expose themselves to vagaries.

Such being the case, it is time to start thinking in terms of growing our own clean and green organic vegetables/leafy greens/spices etc., in our front/back yards or in balconies/terraces. In addition to large earthen pots, I am also using large size either plastic or metal buckets, drums, containers of various sizes for growing the required greens, vegetables, etc.

In addition to the above, we also grow peas, methi, avarekai, ginger, ridge gourd, bitter gourd, flat beans, onagone soppu (Alternanthera Sessilis), herbs like tulsi (Ocimum sanctum), amrutaballi (Tinospora Cordifolia), doddi patre (Coleus Aromaticus), Mehandi (Lawsonia Inermis), beetle leaves and curry leaves and also other seasonal greens and vegetables. We just grow what we want and how much we want.

We have nurtured an organic bonsai drumstick tree that is about 7 years old. It blessed us with one lengthy drumstick about 3 years ago which I dried and got about 10 pods, planted them in a large drum, got saplings and distributed to friends who are happy to enjoy tasty naati drumsticks. Similarly we have three years old curry leaves plant and a bonsai amla plant.

As for manure, periodically we buy some red soil and manure from the Horticulture Department, mix the same with our kitchen waste stored and aerobically converted into organic manure in a large drum placed on the terrace. We have completely avoided usage of chemical fertilisers or pesticides and if we find any kind of infestation caused by airborne bacteria or insects, we simply remove such plant and destroy it instead of using chemical insecticides and poisoning the plant further. We also find that our home grown greens and vegetables are much tastier and healthy than the consumables bought from outside.

One can also help birds to build nests by providing them proper congenial space, feeds and water (see photos) — for the past many years, Checkered breasted Munia birds keep visiting periodically (earlier we had Bulbuls) building nests in the Cacti plant we have grown in our balcony. Season after season, lay eggs, hatch, nurse and make the kids big, teach them flying and leave only to return for the next breeding season.

In order to care and share the world's natural resources and to keep the food chain with other living beings, we have placed a large earthen pot with water and another with some millets/cereals at a secluded spot at a height and we have observed that birds like Parakeets, Mainas, Cuckoos, Bulbuls, Crows, Babblers, Chickadees, and occasionally Kites quenching their thirst and also having their pick of food provided.

We have grown a Singapore Cherry tree (Chatri Mara in Kannada). Everyday we find Parakeets, Bulbuls, Chickadees, Mainas, Cuckoos, Munias, Crows and a host of other birds visiting at certain fixed hours to have their quota of food/desert. Early morning visitors sing and wake us up with wonderful sounds. In addition, a variety of Bees in hundreds are found taking nectar from the flowers of the Cherry tree from morning till afternoon. In the night, we find a number of Bats flying in circles around the tree and having their pick of fruits.

Conclusion: This wonderful world we are living in, has to be protected, preserved and conserved. Natural resources like air, water and food have to be shared by all living beings on this earth called the global village. Man-animal conflict is a classic example of encroachment and vulnerability for living beings on earth.

It has become imperative for us to rethink about our attitudes and rejig our priorities and go back to basics of living moderately and modestly. Destruction of nature is not development and most developmental works are turning out to be rather environmental catastrophes for our future living conditions as also for our future generations. In addition to natural calamities, man-made changes are creating havocs with our ecosystems, as it were, snow caps are melting at an alarming rate, atmosphere is becoming warmer by the day and in the absence of carbon sequestration measures due to destruction of carbon sinks, we are facing most unexpected weather conditions and untimely droughts and flooding. We need to bring down the green house gases like CO_2 etc., from the present 406 Particulates Per Million (PPM) to less than a tolerable limit of 350 PPM, if we are to keep our future generations in a liveable world.

Kindness & humility vital in medical profession

152 receive degrees at MMC&RI Convocation Ceremony 'Summer Dreams'

Mysuru, Mar. 19 (US&RK)- "Kindness and humility are vital components in Medical profession while treating patients," opined Dr. C.N. Manjunath, Director, Sri Jayadeva Institute of Cardiovascular Sciences & Research, Bengaluru.

He was delivering the address at the Convocation Ceremony 'Summer Dreams' of Mysore Medical College and Research Institute (MMC&RI) held under the aegis of MMC&RI and Mysore Medical College Alumni Association (MAA) this morning at J.K. Grounds here.

Dr. Manjunath pointed out that despite quantum leap in science and technology associated with medical field, a patient hearing of the problems of a patient followed by systematic diagnose could alone ensure proper medical treatment. In a nut-shell, he suggested a simple mantra — Talk, Touch and Treat, while treating patients which simply boils down to good communication, proper systematic examination / investigation followed by routine treatment.

Continuing, Dr. Manjunath suggested the graduating doctors to update their knowledge on regular basis and discuss with seniors to elicit more information. He opined that doctors were ready to work in rural areas provided the infrastructure was good and protection was provided to doctors who sometimes have to bear the brunt of fury of family of a patient for no fault of theirs. He added that the existing hospitals should be developed and upgraded instead of simply opening new hospitals.

In all, 152 students of 2011 batch received the degrees. The toppers were S. Abhishek (Anatomy), Madhu Kikkeri (Physiology), Sowmya S. Aithal (Microbiology and Forensic Medicine), Girija (Ophthalmology), Arpitha (Prevention and Social Medicine), H.R. Bharath (Medicine), Y.R. Harshit (Surgery), Shruti Parimoo (Obstetrics and Gynaecology) and Bhavika Vajawat (ENT and Paediatrics).

The graduating students had a long photo session in the auditorium posing in Convocation gown.

Training workshop in Gond art begins at IGRMS

Mysuru, Mar. 19 (SP&BCT)- A workshop "Do and Learn" began at the Indira Gandhi Rashtriya Manav Sangrahalaya (IGRMS), Southern Regional Centre (SRC), on Wellington House on Irwin Road in city yesterday where the famous Gond art is being taught by artists from Madhya Pradesh.

This is for the first time that such a workshop is being organised by Gond artists and the workshop will be on till Mar. 27.

The workshop is being conducted by tribal artists Nakul Pasham and his wife Premavathi Pashum. According to Vijay Mohan, Officer In-charge, IGRMS SRC, this is the 60th event being held under "Do and Learn" educational series.

The Gonds are among the largest tribes in Central India, numbering about 40 lakh. Though predominantly centred in Madhya Pradesh, they are present in significant numbers in Madhya Pradesh, Andhra Pradesh, Maharashtra, Chhattisgarh and Odisha.

The word "Gond" comes from the Dravidian expression kond, meaning 'the green mountain.' The recorded history of the Gond people goes back 1,400 years, but considering that they inhabit areas where rock paintings dating to the Mesolithic age have been found, their antecedents probably date back even earlier.

Many of the Gonds customs echo Mesolithic forbearers. An obvious example of this is the custom of decorating the walls of their houses, an activity that may originate in cave-dwelling traditions of their ancestors. The Gonds paint their walls with vibrant depictions of local flora, fauna and Gods and Goddess Kali.

According to the Gond belief system, each and everything whether it is a hill, river, rock or a tree is inhabited by a spirit and, consequently, is sacred. So the Gond people paint them as a form of respect and reverence. Gond paintings are a reflection of man's close connection with his natural surroundings.

The artists use natural colours derived from charcoal, coloured soil, plant sap, leaves, and cow dung. This mystical art form is created by putting together dots and lines. The imaginative use of the line imparts a sense of movement to the still images. The paintings are an offering in worship of nature, and are also a mode of seeking protection and warding off evil.

Natl. Artists Workshop from tomorrow

Also, a National Artists Workshop has been organised at the IGRMS, SRC, premises from Mar. 20 to 29. The workshop will be inaugurated by Prof. P.K. Misra, President, Anthropological Association, Mysuru, tomorrow at 11.30 am.

A tribal workshop will be open for public on all days from between 10 am and 5.30 pm. Artists from Karnataka, Andhra Pradesh, Tamil Nadu, Madhya Pradesh and Chhattisgarh will take part in this workshop.

Around 14 tribal artisans are participating and art forms like, Gond painting, Saora painting, Godna painting, Taoda embroidery, Karnataka basketry will be present in the demonstrative workshop.

The facility is scheduled to be launched soon

Mysuru, Mar. 19 (RK&KS)- A Trin Trin bicycle stationed at the docking station near Lingaiah Circle at Ashokapuram has been stolen by miscreants who have pulled out the bicycle by force from the securing clip.

Confirming about the theft, MCC Zone 2 Assistant Commissioner Javaregowda, speaking to SOM, said that the bicycle has been stolen and a complaint has been lodged at Ashokapuram Police Station in this regard.

Though the launch of the facility was scheduled tentatively in the last week of March, it is likely to be put off till the conclusion of the election process on April 13.

Trin Trin is India's first Public Bicycle Sharing (PBS) initiative, where the bicycles will be rented out with the user placing the smart card on the reader next to the docked cycle and secure its release. The docking stations were planned to be unmanned, and the theft has come as a shock to the authorities who may now have to consider patrolling near the docking stations as the bicycles will have to remain in the docking station overnight as the PBS operates from 6 am to 10 pm.

India's first aviator Prof. Setti's contributions hover around Mysuru

Did you know that India's first aviator was from Mysore? In this article, Dr. Anantha Krishnan M. throws light on the contributions of Prof. Venkata Subba Setti who has been featured in 'Modern Review' magazine in 1912 under the title: 'The First Indian Aviator.' Now read on. — Ed

By Dr. Anantha Krishnan M.

Till a few years back, Jehangir Ratanji Dadabhoy Tata, more famously known as JRD Tata, was reckoned to be the first aviator from and of India. However, there has been another claimant to bag the distinction of being India's first aviator and this man was from Mysore. He is Prof. Venkata Subba Setti, born at Shivarampet.

Prof. Setti's great grandson G.N. Jayaprakash is a scientist with Gas Turbine Research Establishment in Bengaluru. Records provided by Jayaprakash show that Prof. Setti was born on December 28, 1879. "Prof. Setti was involved in the design of Avro-504, the first trainer aircraft of the world in 1912 and later flown it for the first time in 1913," says Jayaprakash.

Got Technical Scholarship from Maharaja of Mysore

Prof. Setti did his education at Wesleyan Mission High School, Mysore and later passed matriculation from Madras University in 1896. With a Technical Scholarship from the then Maharaja of Mysore, he did his further education at Madras Engineering College and Thomson Engineering College, Roorkee.

Later he joined the Mysore State Government as a probationary sub-assistant engineer in 1906 and served for two years before heading to England on a scholarship in 1909. Prof. Setti chased his passion for planes in England and joined A.V. Roe and Co (Avro) in 1911.

'Modern Review' features Prof. Setti in 1912

Prof. Setti was featured in the popular 'Modern Review' magazine in 1912 with the title: 'The First Indian Aviator.' He was also a recipient of a specially-minted medal from Messrs A.V. Roe & Co. The Company described the ace plane-maker from India as "persevering, industrious and an expert in matters of aviation."

Jayaprakash is in possession of an appreciation letter from Avro (dated March 12, 1912) sent to Prof. Setti. The letter terms Prof. Setti as an expert who was good at tuning plane engines in addition to designing them.

"India is a land of science. Mysore itself never lagged behind in its contribution towards modern science through innovation of missile (Tipu Sultan) and aircraft (Prof. Setti)," says Jayaprakash. "I am delighted both personalities have their roots in Mysuru," he adds.

Jayaprakash has scanned images of Modern Review sourced from the magazine publishers in Kolkata. He has over the years also gathered all evidences related to Prof. Setti from India and abroad.

Closely associated with Avro-504 project

Prof. Setti was closely associated with Avro-504 project which flew for the first time in 1913. Interestingly, today Hindustan Aeronautics Ltd., is the only company in the world that manufactures Avros under licence, at its Transport Aircraft Division in Kanpur.

After his return to India in 1913, Prof. Setti was appointed as the first Superintendent of School of Mechanical Engineering. According to Jayaprakash, this paved the way for the University Visvesvaraya College of Engineering, Bangalore — one of the oldest technical institutions in India.

His life was cut short in 1918 following a pneumonia attack. He along with his wife and a child died at Bangalore's Victoria Hospital, leaving three daughters behind. Prof. Setti is an unsung hero of Indian aviation, but his family members continue with their efforts in collecting all information of a passionate plane-maker from Mysore.

Tale of India's trampled tribals

Known for long years in academic circles, of Mysuru in particular, Dr. Promode Kumar Misra, a long time resident of the city, an accomplished anthropologist, brings to bear in this publication a graphic tale of India's trampled tribals, perceived for centuries as hunting and gathering societies.

The author, based on his virtually lifetime study of the forest dwelling populations across India finds fulfilment in taking up the case and cause of tribals, glorified by Dalai Lama as peace-makers, healers and restorers, story-tellers and lovers (of humanity) of all kinds.

Students pursuing tribal studies have not been asking the relevant questions, Dr. Misra bemoans. Given the environmentally heterogeneous character of different regions across the country hosting tribal populations, the author has done a monumental work resulting in recognising the country's tribals as a larger community than as inhabitants in isolated pockets.

The author has thrown light on the adverse impact of colonial rule on tribals as an integral part of Indian diaspora following commercialisation of forest resources, apart from framing rules amounting to criminalising the whole community. In this context, his citing the verdict of renowned linguist Dr. D.P. Pattanayak (Founder Director of Mysuru-based Central Institute of Indian Languages), namely "Movement of bringing tribals into mainstream only means excluding, marginalising and demolishing smaller languages and cultures."

Keeping the spirit of the publication's title, the author, in the course of his narrative in eight chapters, each with distinct sections and 'endnotes,' enlightens the readers with lucid presentation leaving no gap in understanding the life of the tribals. One couldn't have asked for more.

The virtually encyclopaedic information provided by the author in the publication may be considered fully rewarding if it triggers pro-active response by voluntary groups to restore a rightful place for tribals in the country.

The framework for protection of the rights of tribal and indigenous people is strengthened by the Recognition of Forest Rights Act, 2006, which protects the individual and community rights of tribal people in forest areas and their right to free and prior informed consent in the event of their displacement and resettlement. Regrettably, this Act, much like most other Acts of the country, has suffered tardy implementation resulting in unabated trampling of the tribals as well as their culture, traditions and life.

Bibliography comprising 215 valuable references and also an eight-page index immensely enhance the value of the book from the view point of both scholars pursuing studies on tribals and also lay readers.

ದುಡೇ ದೊಡ್ಡಪ್ಪ !!?

"ಸಾಮಾನ್ಯ ಜನರು ದಿನವೆಲ್ಲಾ ಕೆಲಸ ಮಾಡಿ ಸಂಬಳ ಪಡೆಯುತ್ತಾರೆ. ಆದರೆ ಯಶಸ್ವಿ ವ್ಯಕ್ತಿಗಳು ತಾವು ಇದುವರೆಗೆ ಉಳಿತಾಯ ಮಾಡಿದ ಹಣವನ್ನು ಷೇರು ಮಾರುಕಟ್ಟೆಯಲ್ಲಿ ತೊಡಗಿಸಿ ತಾವು ಮಲಗಿರುವಾಗಲೂ ಹಣವನ್ನು ದ್ವಿಗುಣ ಗೊಳಿಸಿಕೊಳ್ಳುತ್ತಾರೆ ಎನ್ನುತ್ತಾರೆ ಆಂತ ರ್ರಾಷ್ಟ್ರೀಯ ಖ್ಯಾತಿಯ ತರಬೇತುದಾರ ರಾದ ಡಾ|| ಭರತ್ ಚಂದ್ರ.

ನಂಬಿದರೆ ನಂಬಿ, ಬಿಟ್ಟರೆ ಬಿಡಿ. 1993 ರಲ್ಲಿ ನೀವು ರೂ. 9,600 ಕೊಟ್ಟು ಇನ್ ಫೋಸಿಸ್ ಕಂಪೆನಿಯ ಷೇರುಗಳನ್ನು ಖರೀದಿಸಿದ್ದರೆ ಇಂದು ಅದರ ಒಟ್ಟು ಮೊತ್ತ 5.27 ಕೋಟಿ ! ಇತರೆ ಕಂಪೆನಿ ಗಳಾದ L&T, Axis Bank, Maruti ಮತ್ತು M&M ಕತೆ ಮತ್ತಷ್ಟು ರೋಚಕ.
